9 DEREK ONZELL MORROW, SR.,

10 Plaintiff,

11 vs.

12 NEVADA DEPARTMENT OF 13 CORRECTIONS, et al.,

14 Defendants.

Case No. 3:14-cv-00008-RCJ-WGC

ORDER

15 Plaintiff, who is a prisoner in the custody of the Nevada Department of Corrections, has 16 submitted an application to proceed in forma pauperis (#1) and a civil rights complaint pursuant to 17 42 U.S.C. § 1983. The court will defer ruling upon the application (#1). The court has reviewed the 18 complaint, and plaintiff will need to submit an amended complaint.

19 When a “prisoner seeks redress from a governmental entity or officer or employee of a 20 governmental entity,” the court must “identify cognizable claims or dismiss the complaint, or any 21 portion of the complaint, if the complaint (1) is frivolous, malicious, or fails to state a claim upon 22 which relief may be granted; or (2) seeks monetary relief from a defendant who is immune from 23 such relief.” 28 U.S.C. § 1915A(b). Rule 12(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provides 24 for dismissal of a complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.
25 Allegations of a pro se complainant are held to less stringent standards than formal pleadings 26 drafted by lawyers. Haines v. Kerner, 404 U.S. 519, 520 (1972) (per curiam).

27 Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(a)(2), a pleading must contain a “short and plain 28 statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” . . . [T]he pleading standard Rule 8 announces does not require “detailed factual allegations,” but it demands

1 more than an unadorned, the-defendant-unlawfully-harmed-me accusation. A pleading that 2 offers “labels and conclusions” or “a formulaic recitation of the elements of a cause of action
 3 will not do.” Nor does a complaint suffice if it tenders “naked assertion[s]” devoid of “further factual enhancement.” . . .

4 [A] complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to “state a claim to 5 relief that is plausible on its face.” A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads 6 factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is 7 liable for the misconduct alleged. The plausibility standard is not akin to a “probability requirement,” but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully. Where a complaint pleads facts that are “merely consistent with” a defendant’s liability, it “stops short of the line between possibility and plausibility of ‘entitlement to relief.’”

8 Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 677-78 (2009) (citations omitted).

9 Plaintiff alleges that on January 6, 2012, he injured his hand while playing basketball. On 10 January 7, 2012, he was admitted to the prison infirmary. The nurses present, a “John Doe” and two 11 “Jane Does,” determined that plaintiff’s hand was swollen, not broken. Plaintiff asked for an X-12 Ray, but the request was denied. On a sick call on January 19, 2012, another nurse examined his 13 hand and determined it was broken. Plaintiff then was treated over the next two months.

14 The caption names the Nevada Department of Corrections as a defendant. Plaintiff also has 15 named as defendants: (1) Neven, the prison warden, (2) Marrow, the associate warden, (3) James 16 Cox, the director of the Nevada Department of Corrections, (4) Bruce Bannister, the medical 17 director of the Nevada Department of Corrections, and (5) three “Doe” nurses, all in their individual 18 and official capacities. An official-capacity claim against a person is the same as a claim against the 19 agency that employs the person; in this case, that agency is the Nevada Department of Corrections.

20 Kentucky v. Graham, 473 U.S. 159, 165 (1984). The State of Nevada and the Nevada Department
 21 of Corrections, which is an arm of the state, are not people within the meaning of 42 U.S.C. § 1983.

22 Will v. Michigan Dept. of State Police, 491 U.S. 58, 70-71 (1989). They are not proper defendants 23 in this § 1983 action. Likewise, defendants Neven, Marrow, Cox, Bannister, and the “Does,” in 24 their official capacities, are not proper defendants in this action. In the amended complaint, plaintiff
 25 should not include the Nevada Department of Corrections as a defendant. Plaintiff also should not 26 check the line indicating that he is suing defendants Neven, Marrow, Cox, Bannister, and the 27 “Does” in their official capacities.

1 “[D]eliberate indifference to a prisoner’s serious illness or injury states a cause of action
 2 under section 1983.” Estelle v. Gamble, 429 U.S. 97, 105 (1976). “A ‘serious’ medical need exists 3 if the failure to treat a prisoner’s condition could result in further significant injury or the 4 ‘unnecessary and wanton infliction of pain.’” McGuckin v. Smith, 974 F.2d 1050, 1059 (9th Cir.
 5 1992) (quoting Gamble, 429 U.S. 104), overruled on other grounds, WMX Techs., Inc. v. Miller, 6 104 F.3d 1133, 1136 (9th Cir. 1997) (en banc). “The existence of an injury that a reasonable doctor 7 or patient would find important and worthy of comment or treatment; the presence of a medical 8 condition that significantly affects an individual’s daily activities; or the existence of chronic and 9 substantial pain are examples of indications that a prisoner has a ‘serious’ need for medical 10 treatment.” McGuckin, 974 F.2d at 1059-60.

11 Deliberate indifference is subjective. The prison official cannot be held liable “unless the 12 official knows of and disregards an excessive risk to inmate health or safety; the official must both 13 be aware of facts from which the inference could be drawn that a substantial risk of harm exists, and 14 he must also draw the inference.” Farmer v. Brennan, 511 U.S. 825, 838 (1994). “To show 15 deliberate indifference, the plaintiff must show that the course of treatment the doctors chose was 16 medically unacceptable under the circumstances and that the defendants chose this course in 17 conscious disregard of an excessive risk to plaintiff’s health.” Snow v. McDaniel, 681 F.3d 978, 18 988 (9th Cir. 2012) (internal quotations omitted), overruled on other grounds, Peralta v. Dillard, 744
 19 F.3d 1076, 1082-83 (9th Cir. 2014). However, a difference of opinion over the appropriate course
 20 of treatment does not amount to deliberate indifference. Toguchi v. Chung, 391 F.3d 1051, 1058
 21 (9th Cir. 2004).

22 Plaintiff has alleged plausibly that his medical condition, a broken hand, is sufficiently 23 serious to fall within the protection of the Eighth Amendment. However, for the reasons stated 24 below, plaintiff has not satisfied the subjective part of the deliberate indifference standard.

25 Plaintiff has not stated claims against defendants Neven, Marrow, Cox, and Bannister.
 26 These defendants all are supervisors. “A supervisor may be liable if there exists either (1) his or her 27 personal involvement in the constitutional deprivation, or (2) a sufficient causal connection between 28 the supervisor’s wrongful conduct and the constitutional violation.” Hansen v. Black, 885 F.2d 642,

1 646 (9th Cir. 1989). Plaintiff does not meet this standard. These defendants' names appear only in 2 the preliminary section of the complaint. In the body of the complaint, plaintiff has not alleged any 3 facts relating to defendants Neven, Marrow, Cox, and Bannister. Plaintiff will need to correct this 4 defect in the amended complaint, or the court will dismiss these defendants.

5 Plaintiff might have stated a claim against the nurses who refused to examine his hand for 6 broken bones on January 7, 2012. However, plaintiff has not named these nurses. Assuming for the 7 moment that plaintiff cannot state a claim against defendants, Neven, Marrow, Cox, and Bannister, 8 the action cannot proceed against "Doe" defendants alone. Plaintiff will need to identify these 9 nurses in the amended complaint if he wishes to proceed against them.

10 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that a ruling upon the application to proceed in forma
11 pauperis (#1) is DEFERRED.

12 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the clerk of the court shall file the complaint.

13 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the complaint is DISMISSED for failure to state a claim
14 upon which relief can be granted, with leave to amend. The clerk shall send to plaintiff a civil rights 15 complaint form with instructions. Plaintiff will have thirty (30) days from the date that this order is 16 entered to submit his amended complaint, if he believes that he can correct the noted deficiencies.
17 Failure to comply with this order will result in the dismissal of this action.

18 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that plaintiff shall clearly title the amended complaint as such 19 by placing the word "AMENDED" immediately above "Civil Rights Complaint Pursuant to 42
20 U.S.C. § 1983" on page 1 in the caption, and plaintiff shall place the case number, 3:14-cv-00008-
